

Daniel Pasteiner lives and works in London, where he earned his BA at the Camberwell School of Art and his MA in fine art at the Royal College of Art. While at Camberwell, he and several of his students founded Students for Stuckism, which they described as "the only emerging force against Brit Art and stagnant Conceptualism." His paintings allude to pop culture and science fiction. Love builds up, a 2008 painting, incorporates oil paint as well as vinyl records and pieces of track used for racing Tyco toy cars.
